

ETI UPDATE: September 2022

To all those who work in education,

Welcome to the start of a new academic term!

In this update we set out the themes which will guide our work during the period from September 2022 to January 2023.

Throughout the last academic year, considerable progress has been made in the development of ETI's new Quality Improvement Strategy. Key to this success has been the willingness of our stakeholders, including learners, to share their views and ideas with us. This feedback is already being acted on and has helped us immensely in our development work. We thank everyone who gave up their time to support us in this work.

The Quality Improvement Strategy

The Quality Improvement Strategy sets out our broad framework for inspection, evaluation and other related work going forward. Informed by extensive consultation with the education and training systems, it is designed to enable us to empower improvement for all learners through the facilitation of collaborative working with our professional peers, policy makers, parents/carers and learners. The strategy incorporates four interrelated strands as shown below.

The planned work across each of the four strands for the period September 2022 to January 2023 is outlined below.
